NATIONAL INSURANCE (NON-PARTICIPATION – CONTINUITY OF EMPLOYMENT) REGULATIONS

Conditions for disregard of change in employment

2.—(1) Where on the transfer of the whole or part of any business from one employer to another (which whole or part so transferred is hereafter in this regulation called “the transferred business”) a person, who immediately before the transfer is in any employment in the transferred business which is a non-participating employment, continues to be employed in the transferred business after the transfer in such circumstances that—

- (a) were the certificate issued to and election made by the former employer relating to the person’s employment treated respectively as issued to and made by the new employer, his employment would continue to be a non-participating employment; and
- (b) the person’s service with the new employer continues to be service qualifying him for retirement benefits under the recognised superannuation scheme relating to his employment in the transferred business before the transfer;

then, for the purposes of Part II of the Act of 1959, the change in his employment shall be disregarded and the employment under the new employer shall be treated as a continuation of that under the former employer, and the said certificate issued to and election made by the former employer shall be treated respectively as issued to and made by the new employer in relation to any person employed by him in the transferred business to whom they would apply were they so treated.

(2) Where under the provisions of paragraph (1) of this regulation a change in a person’s employment is to be disregarded and the employment under the new employer treated as a continuation of that under the former employer, the new employer shall, within one month after the date of the change, give notice to the Registrar, and shall furnish such particulars of the employment and of the superannuation scheme relating thereto as the Registrar may reasonably require for the purposes of the said paragraph (1); and the Registrar may endorse the certificate issued to and election made by the former employer, to show that they are to be treated respectively as issued to and made by the new employer in relation to any employment in the transferred business to which they apply by virtue of the said paragraph (1).

(3) For the purposes of this regulation—

- (a) the expression “transfer” means a transfer of any kind, by operation of law or otherwise;
- (b) a transfer from one employer to another shall be deemed to have occurred on a transfer from an employer to himself jointly with one or more other employers, or from two or more joint employers to any one or more of themselves (and whether or not jointly with one or more other persons); and
- (c) in any case where a receiver or manager of a company is appointed by order of the Court in accordance with the provisions of the Companies Act 1948(a), the business of that company shall be deemed to have been transferred from the company to him in so far as he relates to persons employed by him in that business.

Form of notice and penalty

3.—(1) Notice required to be given to the Registrar by regulation 2 of these regulations shall be given on a form approved by him for the purpose, or in such manner (being in writing) as he may accept as sufficient in the circumstances of the case.

(2) If any person fails without reasonable cause to give notice in accordance with the requirement of regulation 2, he shall for such offence be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding £10, or where the offence consists of continuing any such failure after conviction thereof, £10 together with a further £10 for each day on which it is so continued.

(a) 11 & 12 Geo. 6, c.38.
