

Update 7 Oct 2015 – please read

From this date all the existing SI bookmarks now go direct to legislation.gov.uk

We now send our amended PDF's to National Archives for them to update on their site. These PDF's can be accessed on the left hand side of any SI it also has the (amended by date) next to it. These law vol pages will no longer be updated but will stay as an archive of past work – to search for any new SI after this date please use the search facility (either by name or number) on the legislation.gov.uk website which you can also access through gov.uk

This traditional law vols page will not be amended with new SI's going forward However all new and amended SI's will be available on legislation.gov.uk You can search for Law Relating to Social Security by SI name or number on legislation.gov.uk. The same applies to Law Relating to Child Support.

The statutes continue to be shown as PDF's on our old site for LRSS And LRCS but it is expected that this will also be hosted on legislation.gov.uk in the near future

Thanks

Update 2 – November 2013

The December 2013 Amendment package is likely to be the last one we will publish in terms of the Blue Vols. This is because as more of our legislation is moved over to Legislation.gov.uk it will become un-sustainable to keep two systems going in their entirety.

Unfortunately this means that anyone updating their hard copies will not receive a remove and insert instruction from us on amended pages beyond the December package. However we will be still publishing all the SI's in the yearly bookmarks as usual, though more of these will re-direct to legislation.gov.uk over time as the links below show.

Thanks
DMA Leeds, Publications Team

Update 1 –

With the launch of the September 2013 Law Relating to Social Security package we have done some new Statutory instruments directly onto the National Archives site –

These are – 2013/604, 2013/803, 2013/983, 2013/1117, 2013/1139, 2013/1142, 2013/1187, 2013/1391, 2013/1474, 2013/1508, 2013/1509, 2013/1510, 2013/1754

These among the other legislative changes are available to see here

We will also be doing a December package along the same and doing amendments onto the National Archives website legislation.gov.uk where possible

Thanks

First publication -

News about social security legislation (The Law Volumes)

DMA Leeds is now working in partnership with The National Archives to provide a new way for you to access updated social security legislation. The National Archives is a United Kingdom government department and an executive agency of the Ministry of Justice. They are the official government archive and one of their roles is to maintain revised versions of all legislation on the legislation.gov.uk website.

DMA Leeds has been responsible for a number of years for producing the Law relating to Social Security and the Law relating to Child Support and we do this by a series of regular amendment packages that we publish on our internal departmental intranet site and the external DWP website. While this has served us well over the years, the opportunity to create a more accessible and user friendly product is something we welcome and will enable the legislation to be updated on a rolling basis making it more relevant to you. You may have already accessed the legislation.gov.uk website (but if you have not then click on the link here) and so may be familiar with how legislation is presented there. National Archives have, up until now, been concentrating on getting primary legislation (Acts) onto their website and consolidating them with subsequent amendments and also publishing secondary legislation (S.I.'s Orders etc) in their original format. Our involvement with them marks a new phase in the plan to get all legislation on The National Archives site regularly updated.

This note therefore is by way of an introduction to changes you will see in the way you will access social security legislation in the future. At the moment, social security legislation will continue to be issued on our site as it has been, but there will be a gradual transfer to The National Archives site over a period of time. As soon as we have some more information on the timescales for this we will put out a further note.
